Type: The Manifesting Generator as Differentiated from the Generator

By Eleanor Haspel-Portner, Ph.D.

Note: Since this paper was first published in 2001, a great deal of clinical and statistical research has been collected on Types in the Multidimensional Human Design System. Most individuals (about 98%) function as a Manifesting Generator in their life. Human are meant to manifest their highest potential and are designed to accomplish their life purpose.

The data indicates that the more aware an individual is of how their energy flows the more aware they can be of their best strategy and timing for manifesting in their life. In order to learn about how you function and your best timing and strategy, contact Dr. Eleanor Haspel-Portner at: ehp@unifiedlifesciences.com.

This paper, written in 2001, shows the origins and development of work that evolved into Noble Sciences Sacred Synthesis. It is published in its original form to preserve the integrity of the material and so readers have a sense of the roots and complexity of Noble Sciences Sacred Synthesis. Definitions of Terms

Science has established that the Manifesting Generator (MG) represents a distinct Type from the Generator (G)(cf. “Revised Research Verifies 5 Types in the Human Design System.” Eleanor Haspel-Portner, PhD. Unified Life Sciences. August, 2001, 2003 & “The Triple Design Matrix: Type Statistically Verified Across the Matrix,” Eleanor Haspel-Portner, Ph.D., Unified Life Sciences, August 2001, 2003). By Definition in Design, a MG is a person who has the Sacral Center defined and a Motor/Fuel Center, which may or may not be the Sacral Center, defined to the Throat Center. On the other hand, a G is a person who has the Sacral Center defined but the Sacral Center does not reach the Throat Center through either a direct or through an indirect connection. Thus, the Generator (G) is a person whom we generally tell, “you must wait to be asked. Your strategy is non-initiation. You are here to respond.” When this individual is “asked,” the Sacral Center then has the opportunity to release its energy. When such an individual attempts to initiate action, the response is as likely to be incorrect as it is to be correct for that person since the Authority for that response is not coming from the correct Sacral Center energy configuration.

Considerations

In any discussion about Type, the importance of the many variables in a person's Designs across the Triple Design Matrix (TDM) must be considered. Many individuals who are Generators (G) or Manifesting Generators (MG) have Solar Plexus Authority that affects the Sacral Center response and which must be considered energetically in looking at that person. In addition, our work with Single, Split, Triple, and Quadruple definitions add subtlety and nuance to any individual's response pattern. That being said, the focus of this paper is primarily to raise interesting clinical observations for your consideration and exploration.

Because the Manifesting Generator (MG), although related to the Generator (G), statistically tests as a distinct Type from the G in the Waking Solar Human Design Chart (SDC), the pairing seems to shift in the other Matrices. The MG holds as a distinct Type statistically in the Solar Sleep Design Chart (SSD) and Lunar Sleep Design Chart (LSD) with frequency and patterns that are more similar to that of the M than to that of the G. Thus, we are well grounded in theorizing that the MG process involves something different than the process in both the G and in the M. In the SDC, The MG seems to have a three-step process experientially rather than a one-step process.

Hypotheses & Interpretations

The Manifesting Generator (MG) has the Sacral Center defined and a Motor/Fuel Center, which may or may not be the Sacral Center, defined to the Throat Center. The first step in any process for this person, who is a Generator (G) first, is not to initiate, it is "to be asked," i.e., to be receptive, so the Sacral Center Response can be elicited. After that response from the Sacral Center occurs, in the MG, the manifestation process begins to visualize itself through the circuitry of the person. Through this beginning process, confirmation of the truth of that response can then be received and processed back through the Sacral Center of the person. Often for the MG, it is only when the beginning seeds of the manifesting process occur that verification from the integrated aspects of the TDM confirm that the MG is indeed manifesting the true and "correct" response for all layers of their being.

Based on the Triple Design Matrix (TDM) findings this true and "correct" response in the MG may be driven from a different aspect or layer of the programming field than it is in the G. This hypothesis would be congruent with the different experiential descriptions we hear clinically from MG as compared to the pure G.

In addition, because we live in a Conditioning Field, the MG must learn the strategy of Acting as though the manifestation is beginning before settling in to a final decision about the process. It is only at this time that the correctness of the process for this person can be confirmed by the Sacral Center response and through the other layers of programming in the MG. All Gs, including the MG, "test drive" their responses because of their interactions with aspects they meet in their life, i.e., conditioning. Thus, it is important for them to be clearly in touch with their own response from the Sacral Center and from any other Center that carries Authority for them.

In an ideal world, the congruity of the expression of the Sacral Center response for the Manifesting Generator (MG) would allow for a smooth and unencumbered fluid process because the responses of the Sacral Center naturally Manifest in them through their circuitry. However, since we are not living in a world where everyone is honored by/for oneself, we see the process expressing itself differently and have the opportunity to observe it in its component parts of expression.

Because the Throat Center is neither an Awareness Center nor a Motor/Fuel Center, it carries a definite impediment to Sacral Center truth. It is this aspect of the Design of the Manifesting Generator (MG) in the Solar Human Design Chart (SDC) that probably results in the observations set forth here. In the Triple Design Matrix, (TDM) we see that the Manifestor (M) and the Manifesting Generator (MG) are related; they both have the most dramatic shift in Type as their Solar Sleep Design changes.

Part of the importance of the data from the Triple Design Matrix (TDM) differentiations is that it opens up additional information and understanding about the mechanics of the Manifesting Generator (MG) and differences between the Manifesting Generator (MG) and the Generator (G). We know that when the MG moves away from the singular Sacral Center truth, the door opens up to pain for them in their SDC. When their Manifesting aspect veers them away from their Sacral Center response their very manifesting potential becomes the main source of their pain in life especially if their manifesting is not additionally congruent with their Solar Sleep and Lunar Sleep Designs.

It may very well be that the MG's vulnerability in the SDC toward manifesting in ways that do not honor their Sacral Center response has roots in the Solar Sleep and in the Lunar Sleep Design Charts. We know from work on these matrices that they carry the archetypal collective consciousness of the whole; both MG and Ms are likely to become Reflectors in the Solar Sleep Design and in the Lunar Sleep Design where the programming from these levels of consciousness may impel them toward manifesting. In the MG this push to initiate in the SDC would be without regard to their Sacral Center response. It could be this conflict that sets up the binary process that we have observed in our clinical work at ULS. In addition, in light of the data from the Triple Design Matrix, it seems likely that the layers of consciousness programmed into the MG are linked to the archetypal information they have received during sleep. This layer of information makes their Sacral Center response somewhat different in flavor at its underlying layer of the being than it is in the pure Generator.

Example

For the Generator (G), for example, the question, "Would you like to go out to dinner?" may elicit an, "uh huh," ("yes") or an, "un un," ("no") response from the Sacral Center. Once that response is determined, the person proceeds with the energy of the fueled Sacral Center response and the process has correctly begun. For the Manifesting Generator (MG), it is a different story. When asked, "Would you like to go out to dinner?" the MG at first gets the same, "uh huh," or "un un," response from the Sacral Center, but it is only in the moments after the Sacral Center response that the MG knows if the response is the correct one or not. In other words, if the response was “uh huh,” it is in standing to get dressed, i.e., in the activity of beginning to live out the response, for example, that another response becomes clear. It is then that the MG takes its true authority as a Manifestor (M) in initiating the next phase of their process. At this time, this person knows what is correct for him or her. If the action process, as it begins, results in a revision of the response in the “gut,” which is the seat of the Sacral Center Authority, the person must then change course to have a truly healthy outcome congruent with the Self. In addition, it is when the MG knows the response is “correct” that the strategy of their Manifesting aspect that is to inform or to be informed activates and the action of the response needs to be communicated to others. We theorize that the source of this difference in the “correctness” of response information in the Sacral Center response has to do with the programming information that the individual has received in the REM (Rapid Eye Movement) process during sleep, and how that information has been written to the brain association areas during that process. Because during REM sleep, the Multiplematrix system of the being is active (of which we were only working with the Triple Design Matrix instead of the Multimatrix when this paper was first written), the programming occurs on all levels of the matrix including the SDC and thus in a MG the M part of the Matrix is also impacted with the archetypal programming telling it what its manifesting tasks are for the whole.

Finally

We are aware of the complexity of the situation. We caution all of you to look carefully at the Triple Design Matrix (now the Multilayers are available through the ULS NTW computer program module) of individuals with whom you work. You might very well find that an individual’s Type changes through the consciousness matrix and, thus, defines people differently at different times. A Manifesting Generator (MG) who becomes a complete Reflector in the Solar Sleep Design (SSD) and in the Lunar Sleep Design (LSD) is a very different person in fact and in experience of the self than a MG who becomes a reflector in the SSD and a Generator (G), for example, in the LSD. While this data may seem complex and confounding for you to comprehend, we urge you at least to peruse the information for all your charts and to begin to assess the value of it.
